Parents/carers wishing their children to be considered under the faith-based oversubscription criteria must return this form to the relevant school at the time of making their application. Applications will be considered individually as they are received.

2. In all cases, the form must be signed by a parent/carer and countersigned by an Imam who knows the family. If the family's circumstances mean that a suitable Imam is not available, please contact the school. It is the responsibility of the parent/carer to arrange for this to be done and for the form to be returned on time.

3. The first page of the form asks for the child's details so we can match them to an application made on a Common Application Form. We ask for additional information to ensure we apply the oversubscription criteria accurately. We also ask for contact details for a parent/carer so we can communicate with the parent/carer easily. Definitions of the terms used in the form can be found in the admissions arrangements for each school.

3. The rest of the form is a religious practice check. It asks parents/carers to indicate the elements of Islamic faith the family practises. This gives a score which is used if the number of applications for Islamic faith places is greater than the number available. In this event, the children whose applications have the highest scores will have higher priority. Imams and madrasah headteachers countersign the application and this process adds to the score on the religious practice check.
